Karnataka Police issues strict custodial death probe guidelines

Strict guidelines prepared under BNSS, with the State police chief warning of stringent action against officers found violating the rules during investigations into custodial violence and deaths.

BENGALURU

The Karnataka Police Department has introduced stringent procedures to curb incidents of custodial torture and deaths in police custody, with Director General and Inspector General of Police Dr. M.A. Salim issuing detailed investigation guidelines to ensure transparency and accountability.The new directions, framed under the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), are aimed at preventing lapses in investigation, destruction of evidence and possible influence by local police personnel during probes into custodial violence cases.According to the guidelines, if any allegation of torture or ill-treatment in police custody is reported, the jurisdictional police station officer must immediately register an FIR and submit a report without delay to senior officers.

The order also mandates the immediate seizure of CCTV footage from the police station or the location concerned whenever incidents of custodial violence or death are reported. Investigators have been instructed to preserve all electronic and documentary evidence to prevent tampering.In a major step towards transparency, the guidelines make audio and video recording compulsory for victim statements as well as postmortem procedures in custodial death cases. Officials said this would help ensure credibility in investigations and reduce the possibility of manipulation of evidence.

The DGP has further directed that once such cases are transferred to the Criminal Investigation Department (CID), investigators should not rely solely on station records and case diaries maintained earlier by local police. Instead, CID officers must personally visit the scene of occurrence, independently verify the evidence and reassess whether procedures such as mahazar and seizure formalities were conducted properly.Another important provision requires prosecutors to obtain prior sanction from the competent authority before filing charge sheets against accused police personnel. The move is intended to ensure legal scrutiny while maintaining fairness in prosecution.

Police headquarters officials said the guidelines were issued to strengthen public confidence and maintain the integrity of the force by ensuring impartial investigations in sensitive cases.Dr. Salim warned that any violation of the new rules at any stage of investigation would be viewed seriously. He said officers responsible for lapses, suppression of facts or destruction of evidence in cases that tarnish the image of the police department would face direct accountability and strict legal action.The order comes amid increasing public scrutiny over custodial violence cases and is expected to serve as a framework for uniform investigations across the State.

DK Shivakumar has ability to become CM: Youth Congress chief

BENGALURU

State Youth Congress President Manjunath Gowda on Sunday strongly backed Deputy Chief Minister D. K. Shivakumar for the Chief Minister's post, saying the senior Congress leader possessed the capability, intelligence and organisational strength required to lead the State.

Addressing a press conference at the KPCC office in Bengaluru, Manjunath Gowda said there was nothing wrong in party workers and supporters wanting Shivakumar to become the Chief Minister in the future."DK Shivakumar should become the Chief Minister. Why not? He has the ability and leadership qualities. The right time should come and when that moment arrives, he will become the Chief Minister," he said.Praising Shivakumar's contribution to the Congress organisation, Gowda described him as a grassroots leader who had built the party structure from villages to the national level. DK Shivakumar is a party stalwart who has strengthened the Congress from the village level to the national stage, says State Youth Congress President Manjunath Gowda.

Shivakumar was known for nurturing ordinary workers and giving opportunities to leaders from middle-class backgrounds."Elsewhere, leaders do politics only for their own families or children. But DK Shivakumar encourages people who come from ordinary backgrounds. Nearly 95 per cent of the leaders he has supported belong to middle-class families. I myself am an example," he said.

Priyank Kharge questions centre on governance spending claims

Priyank Kharge in Kalaburagi questioned Centre's spending, foreign visits, governance claims, and highlighted Kerala's development model.

KALABURAGI

Congress leader Priyank Kharge raised sharp questions on the Central government's policies, foreign visits, and economic claims while addressing a public interaction in Kalaburagi. He questioned the effectiveness of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's foreign trips and the outcomes derived from them.

Kharge stated that more than ₹ 850 crore has reportedly been spent on the Prime Minister's foreign visits. He asked what long-term benefits India has received from these visits, apart from what he termed self-proclaimed global recognition. He also questioned claims of "Vishwaguru" status and asked whether any country has significantly benefited India in the long run through such engagements.

Criticising the slogan of "Atmanirbhar Bharat," he said there is a need to assess whether the country truly possesses sufficient reserves and real self-reliance. According to him, the gap between political messaging and ground reality needs serious attention.

Speaking about Kerala politics, Kharge said the people of Kerala are educated and tend to choose good governance. He added that governance standards in Kerala have improved and referred to past political controversies, stating that people were earlier misled in the name of Sabarimala-related politics. He described the current situation as a positive beginning in terms of public administration.Responding to Prime Minister Modi's appeal to reduce petrol and diesel consumption, Kharge questioned the practicality of such suggestions. He remarked that simply advising people to use public transport does not address real issues faced by citizens.He further commented that BJP leaders using metro services for social media content would not solve the problems of ordinary people. He stressed that governance must focus on real solutions rather than symbolic actions or publicity-driven initiatives.

The remarks sparked political discussion in the region, with supporters and critics presenting differing views on governance, development, and public policy priorities.

The upgraded facility is expected to become a major tourist attraction in the region.

Originally established as a mini zoo in Kalaburagi city in 1988, the facility has now been expanded into a full-fledged zoo with approvals from the Central Zoo Authority and the State Zoo Authority under Section 38(1) of the Wildlife Protection Act, 1972. Officials said the development aims to promote wildlife conservation, education, and eco-tourism in North Karnataka.

The zoo will eventually feature enclosures for 56 species, including nocturnal animals, Indian birds, mammals, reptiles, amphibians, and herbivores. Planned enclosures include categories such as primates, pheasants, and small birds, along with specialized habitats for various wildlife species.

At present, 23 enclosures have been completed, housing animals such as turtles, gharials, crocodiles, spotted deer, golden jackals, tigers, lions, sloth bears, zebras, baboons, langurs, and several bird species.

Visitors can currently see species including blackbucks, emus, parrots, peacocks, black vultures, and pythons.

Two young lions brought from Bannerghatta Biological Park in Bengaluru have already become a major attraction, drawing significant attention from visitors.

Authorities said more animals, including sambars, red jungle fowls, tigers, king cobras, zebras, and other species, will be introduced in phases over the coming months.

Entry fees have been fixed at ₹75 for adults, ₹40 for children below 12 years, and ₹25 for government school students, with tickets available at the on-site counter.

Officials expressed confidence that the upgraded zoo will boost tourism and provide educational opportunities for students and wildlife enthusiasts across the region.

Kalaburagi authorities advised residents to boil drinking water due to Bhima river water quality deterioration and stagnation issues.

Kalaburagi issues advisory over Bhima river water quality

KALABURAGI

Authorities in Kalaburagi city have issued a public advisory asking residents to boil drinking water before use after concerns were raised over the deterioration in the quality of water sourced from the Bhima river, which supplies a major portion of the city's drinking water needs.

Officials from the KUWSMP–KUIDFC Project Implementation Unit stated that the inflow into the Bhima river has stopped, leading to stagnation of water. This has resulted in algae formation, which is believed to have affected overall water quality in the river source.

Although authorities clarified that the water supplied to households is being treated and disinfected through a super-chlorination process, they have urged citizens to take additional precautionary measures. Residents have been advised to boil, cool, and filter drinking water before consumption to ensure safety.

Officials have also instructed households to install water storage tanks for tap connections. They explained that proper storage systems would help maintain hygiene and reduce the risk of contamination. In low-lying areas, there is a possibility of contaminated water accumulating and re-entering pipelines, which could potentially lead to the spread of waterborne and infectious diseases.Authorities further noted that installing storage tanks would also help prevent water wastage and improve overall distribution efficiency.Residents have been urged to cooperate with the Kalaburagi City Corporation, KUIDFC, and L&T Limited, which are involved in water supply and infrastructure management. Officials stressed that public participation is essential to effectively implement safety and precautionary measures.The advisory comes as part of preventive steps to safeguard public health until normal water flow conditions in the Bhima river are restored. Citizens have been asked.

Bhalki residents face LPG cylinder queue woes

BHALKI

Residents of Bhalki town and nearby villages in Bidar district faced severe inconvenience on Sunday as they were forced to stand in long queues under scorching sun outside a Bharat Gas agency to collect LPG cylinders.

People from various parts of the taluk arrived early in the morning carrying empty cylinders, hoping to secure their domestic gas supply. However, many of them reported waiting for several hours due to heavy rush and delays in distribution, leading to widespread frustration among consumers.

Customers alleged that despite completing online booking procedures for LPG cylinders, timely delivery was not being ensured. Several residents expressed disappointment over repeated delays, stating that the system meant to simplify booking had not improved ground-level supply efficiency.

Many consumers pointed out that the number of households linked to the existing gas agency has increased significantly over time, creating excessive pressure on the distribution system. They demanded the establishment of an additional LPG distribution centre in Bhalki taluk to reduce congestion and ensure smoother supply of cylinders.

Residents also raised concerns about possible irregularities in distribution, alleging that black-market sale of LPG cylinders may be affecting availability for genuine consumers. They urged the authorities to take strict action against any malpractice in the supply chain.

The situation became particularly difficult for elderly citizens and women, who struggled to wait in the long queues under extreme heat conditions. Locals said that inadequate seating, drinking water facilities, and crowd management further worsened the hardship.

They alleged that substandard materials and lack of proper supervision may have contributed to the collapse.

Public members also raised concerns over the utilisation of taxpayer money, stating that crores of rupees spent on the stadium appear to have gone to waste.

They questioned whether proper quality checks and safety inspections were conducted before and after construction.

Following the incident, local officials visited the site and conducted an inspection to assess the extent of the damage.

Preliminary observations were recorded, and reports are expected to be submitted for further action.

Residents have demanded a thorough investigation into the incident and accountability from both the contractor and concerned officials.

They insisted that strict action must be taken if lapses or negligence are found in the execution of the project.

CHITRADURGA

The "Jan Bhagidari – Sabse Door, Sabse Pehle" campaign under the Dharti Aaba Janajatiya Gram Utkarsha Abhiyan was officially launched in Chitradurga, with officials stressing the need to ensure that government welfare schemes reach Scheduled Tribe communities without delay or lack of awareness.

Additional Deputy Commissioner B. T. Kumaraswamy inaugurated the programme at the District Administration office hall, in coordination with the Zilla Panchayat and Social Welfare Department. He said that all departments must work responsibly to create awareness so that eligible beneficiaries do not miss out on government facilities.

He stressed that both the Central and State governments have introduced several welfare schemes for tribal communities, and it is the duty of officials to ensure that this information reaches the grassroots level. He called for coordinated efforts between departments to achieve full coverage of benefits.

District Scheduled Tribes Welfare Officer H. Diwakar said the campaign will run from May 18 to May 25 as part of an IEC (Information, Education and Communication) initiative by the Union Ministry of Tribal Affairs. The programme aims to provide awareness and direct benefits of welfare schemes to tribal populations.

He said special attention will be given to "benefit saturation camps" at village level, along with health check-up camps and awareness programmes on sickle cell anaemia. The focus is on ensuring that tribal communities receive timely healthcare and essential services.

Officials said the campaign is designed to promote schemes such as Pradhan Mantri Janman and DA-JGUA, which aim to improve living standards and provide basic services to remote and underserved communities.

Diwakar noted that unlike previous 15-day campaigns, this initiative has been compressed into seven days, making it more intensive and target-oriented. He directed departments including health, education, agriculture and animal husbandry to take services directly to beneficiaries.

He also instructed officials to document all activities, including photographs and videos, and upload them on the Adi Prasanna portal for transparency and reporting purposes.

Authorities appealed to all departments to work in coordination and ensure the campaign is successful by reaching every eligible household. The initiative aims to strengthen awareness, improve service delivery and ensure that tribal communities fully benefit from government welfare programmes.

'Telangana developing efficient disaster management system'

HYDERABAD

Telangana is developing a more efficient disaster management system by studying rescue measures undertaken globally during disasters, said state Revenue Minister Ponguleti Srinivas Reddy.

He emphasised that rapid response, coordination among departments, and advance preparedness are extremely crucial in emergency situations such as floods, fire accidents, and industrial mishaps.

As part of the statewide disaster management mock exercises conducted on Monday, the minister, along with senior officials, inspected a massive flood mock drill held at the HMDA grounds on Necklace Road in Hyderabad.

Stating that protecting the lives and property of the people is the government's primary responsibility, he underlined the need for trained teams with the latest technology and modern equipment to be ready to undertake rescue operations.

Expressing anguish over forest fires destroying greenery, the minister also pointed out that the increasing fire accidents in urban areas are causing serious concern.

Srinivas Reddy stated that the first hour after a disaster strikes is extremely critical, and the actions taken during that Golden Hour are what can save lives. He noted that such mock drills are highly beneficial for evacuating people to safe areas, swiftly initiating relief measures, and coordinating emergency services during fire accidents, floods, and sudden mishaps.

Citing the 1908 Hyderabad Great Flood and the recent Godavari-Krishna floods, the minister remarked that history shows the extent of damage that occurred without vigilance in disaster management.

As part of the mock drill, special teams demonstrated inflatable lifeboats, technical methods to rescue those trapped in water, emergency evacuation procedures, and coordinated rescue operations in real-time.

The minister later visited the Necklace Road Boating Club and inspected the rescue activities. Commending the conduct of such extensive mock exercises in Telangana state, the minister congratulated the NDRF, SDRF, Disaster Management Department, and district officials.

'APPROACH APPROPRIATE FORUM'

SC refuses to hear PIL on temple priests' wages

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Monday declined to entertain a public interest litigation (PIL) seeking directions for framing a uniform wage and welfare framework for priests, sevadars, and temple staff working in state-controlled temples across the country.

A bench of Justices Vikram Nath and Sandeep Mehta expressed disinclination to interfere in the matter and refused to entertain the plea filed by advocate Ashwini Upadhyay, who appeared in person.

After the apex court indicated its unwillingness to examine the issue, Upadhyay sought permission to withdraw the petition with liberty to approach the appropriate authorities.

The Justice Vikram Nath-led Bench thereafter dismissed the matter as withdrawn.

The petitioner seeks permission to withdraw the plea with liberty to approach the appropriate authorities. The petition is dismissed as withdrawn, the top court recorded in its order.

The plea had sought directions to the Centre and state governments to constitute a judicial commission or expert committee to review the wages and service conditions of priests, sevadars, and temple staff in temples under government control. The petition also sought a declaration that priests and temple staff fall within the definition of employee under Section 2(k) of the Code on Wages, 2019, making them entitled to minimum wages and other labour welfare protections.

The plea contended that once state governments assume administrative, financial and economic control over temples, an employer-employee relationship arises between temple administrations and priests or temple workers. It claimed that priests and temple staff in several states survive on arbitrary honorariums, dakshina-based payments and meagre remuneration, often ranging between Rs 1,000 and Rs 5,000 per month, without pension, healthcare or social security protections.

Referring to statutory frameworks governing temples in states such as Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Karnataka and Kerala, the plea argued that governments exercise pervasive control over appointments, service conditions, disciplinary supervision, and temple revenues, while simultaneously denying labour welfare protections to temple workers.

Rajasthan Assembly unveils new emblem

JAIPUR

Governor Haribhau Bagde on Monday unveiled the newly designed emblem of the Rajasthan Legislative Assembly as part of celebrations marking 75 years of the Assembly's establishment.

He also announced the names of 13 gates within the Assembly premises, describing the legislature as a sacred institution of democracy that reflects Rajasthan's cultural identity and democratic traditions.

Speaking at the ceremony, Governor Bagde said the new emblem symbolises the rich heritage, resilience and democratic values of Rajasthan. He noted that although the Rajasthan Legislative Assembly was formally constituted in 1952 after India's Independence, the foundations of representative governance in the state date back to 1913, when Maharaja Ganga Singh established a representative assembly known as the Pratinidhi Sabha.

The Governor described the unveiling of the emblem as a significant milestone during India's Amrit Kaal celebrations and said it represented the collective aspirations and cultural spirit of the people of Rajasthan.

The new logo was developed on the initiative of Assembly Speaker Vasudev Devnani and incorporates several important symbols associated with the state. These include the Rohida flower, the Khejri tree and the Rajasthan Legislative Assembly building.

According to the Governor, the symbols included in the emblem represent the determination and vibrant spirit of Rajasthan's people, who continue to thrive despite challenging geographical and climatic conditions. Referring to the Khejri tree as Rajasthan's equivalent of the mythical Kalpa Vriksha, he recalled the historic sacrifice of villagers in Khejadli who gave their lives to protect trees. He said the event continues to stand as a powerful example of harmony between nature and society.

During his address, Bagde also shared an anecdote involving Ganesh Vasudev Mavalankar to emphasize the importance of discipline and responsible conduct in governance and daily life. Recounting the story, he said Mavalankar once pointed out that true management begins with personal discipline after observing food being wasted on a plate by a person claiming expertise in management.

Using the example to underline the value of accountability and efficient governance, the Governor stressed that sound management principles should guide public administration and individual conduct alike.

Bagde also highlighted the importance of education and youth development for national progress. He said improving educational opportunities for underprivileged children should remain a priority and called for stronger emphasis on practical learning and quality education in schools.

'Compromising with Constitution, secularism not in national interest'

LUCKNOW

Bahujan Samaj Party chief Mayawati on Monday advised both the Centre and state governments to safeguard the country's secular identity, uphold the dignity of the Constitution, and act firmly against post-election violence in West Bengal.

In a post on X, Mayawati said India enjoys a unique and respected identity across the world because of the Constitution framed by Babasaheb Dr Bhimrao Ambedkar, which is rooted in the principle of secularism and equal respect for all religions.

The country's humanitarian values ensure protection of life, property and religious freedom for followers of every faith, adding that governments as well as citizens must adhere to these constitutional principles, she said.

India's Constitution acts as a protective shield against anti-India propaganda abroad. Therefore, it is the responsibility of both the Central and state governments to ensure that nothing is done, or allowed to happen, that raises unpleasant questions about the country and its governance, she said.

Referring to the continuing debate over post-election violence in West Bengal, the BSP supremo said governments should become more alert and deal strictly with anarchy, especially in light of directions issued by the High Court.

She said it should be a matter of serious concern if any government faces allegations of narrow politics, religious discrimination, caste hatred or bias.

Mayawati further said that any existing or new laws brought in for public safety and larger public interest must be implemented equally for people of all religions.

To uphold the dignity of the Constitution and the rule of law, legal provisions must be enforced without religious or caste-based discrimination, prejudice or hatred, she said, adding that such an approach would strengthen public confidence that governments are working in the interest of all communities.

The BSP chief also said the country was facing difficult social, economic and political conditions, and governments should focus on resolving these pressing issues instead of diverting public attention through what she termed a destructive image-building exercise.

Earlier in the day, Rekha Gupta participated in the Metro Monday initiative launched under the Mera Bharat, Mera Yogdan public campaign. The campaign seeks to encourage greater use of public transport, promote fuel conservation and inspire citizens to contribute toward environmental protection and national development through small but meaningful actions.

'JD(U) driven by money-bag politics': Mohan targets Nitish's inner circle

Patna

Former MP Anand Mohan launched a sharp attack on the functioning of the Janata Dal (United), claiming that the party has strayed from its ideological roots and is now dominated by wealth and influence.

Taking aim at former Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, Anand Mohan said that no one has made greater sacrifices for the Chief Minister than his own family.

He recalled resigning from the Cabinet at Nitish Kumar's signal, but alleged that despite such loyalty, he has now been sidelined.

He further remarked that although Nitish Kumar played a pivotal role in building the JD(U), his presence within the party has significantly diminished.

Today, Nitish Kumar has been politically buried alive. His face is nowhere to be seen—even when he was present on the dais during the swearing-in ceremony alongside 85 legislators, his photograph was missing, he claimed.

Raising questions over party leadership and visibility, Anand Mohan pointed out that earlier posters prominently featured Nitish Kumar along with Deputy Chief Ministers, but current banners across Bihar no longer include key leaders such as Vijay Kumar Chaudhary and Bijendra Prasad Yadav.

If these leaders support you, why are their names and faces absent from the posters? he asked.

'OBEY THE RULE OR FACE ACTION'

Offer namaz in shifts, not on roads: Yogi

LUCKNOW

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Monday stated that offering namaz on public roads should not be permitted, asserting that roads are meant for traffic movement and public convenience rather than activities that obstruct transportation or create inconvenience for citizens.

The Chief Minister said religious gatherings should be conducted in designated spaces and managed in an organised manner.

Addressing an event, CM

Yogi said he is often questioned about whether namaz is still being offered on roads in Uttar Pradesh. He claimed that such practices no longer occur in the state and encouraged people to verify the situation independently.

According to the Chief Minister, roads and public intersections are part of essential public infrastructure intended for the smooth movement of vehicles and pedestrians. He said no individual or group has the right to block traffic or occupy roads in a way that disrupts public order or daily commuting.

Yogi Adityanath remarked that if large religious gatherings attract more people than available space can accommodate, the events should be organised in multiple shifts instead of expanding onto roads and public areas. He said the administration had previously suggested conducting prayers in batches whenever concerns were raised regarding overcrowding.

The Chief Minister stressed that the state government does not oppose religious practices but maintains that they should be carried out at designated places without causing disruption to public life. He said discipline and civic responsibility are essential for maintaining social order in densely populated areas.

Referring to public gatherings at intersections and roadsides, CM Yogi questioned whether anyone had the authority to stop traffic for personal or religious activities. He argued that public roads must remain accessible to all citizens and should not be converted into spaces for large gatherings that interfere with transportation.

The Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister also highlighted that the rule of law applies equally to every citizen and that no community or group.

In war scarred Gaza, brides turn to refurbished wedding dresses

GAZA

In a small sewing workshop in southern Gaza, Nisreen Al Rantisi pulls fabric from a pile and reshapes worn wedding dresses, trying to keep a fading tradition alive amid war and soaring costs. Families said they have been struggling to find new wedding dresses and many search instead for places that refurbish gowns and other kinds of clothes for their children. Importers cite delays, high shipping costs, and restrictions on materials, such as the crystals encrusted into the elaborate wedding dresses, as key factors behind the shortages and price hikes. Many workshops have also been damaged during the conflict. We try to reuse the old gowns that we have, produce them by fixing them a bit, work on them, wash them, arrange them, shape them, said Rantisi, adding that work initially relied on a bicycle-powered sewing machine due to electricity shortages.

China denounces Taiwan foreign min's Geneva visit

BEIJING

China said on Monday it opposed countries providing platforms for Taiwan independence separatist activities, after Taiwan's foreign minister arrived in Switzerland for events on the sidelines of a World Health Organization (WHO) meeting. China said last week it would once again not allow Taiwan, which Beijing views as its own territory, to take part in the WHO's annual World Health Assembly (WHA), which takes place this week. But as in previous years, Taiwan has sent a delegation to hold its own meetings and this year Foreign Minister Lin Chia-lung has also gone, joining Health Minister Shih Chung-liang.

Ebola outbreak declared a global health emergency

Although the outbreak has not yet reached pandemic stage, the risk of further spread remains high, especially in countries sharing borders with Congo

CONGO

The World Health Organization has declared the Ebola outbreak affecting the Democratic Republic of Congo and Uganda a public health emergency of international concern after at least 80 deaths were linked to the disease.

Health authorities warned that although the outbreak has not yet reached pandemic status, the risk of further regional spread remains high, especially in countries sharing borders with the Democratic Republic of Congo.

According to the World Health Organization, the outbreak has been caused by the Bundibugyo strain of the Ebola virus. The agency said the situation required urgent international attention because of the growing number of suspected infections and the potential for cross-border transmission in central and eastern Africa.In a statement released, the United Nations health agency reported that 80 suspected deaths had been recorded in the Democratic Republic of Congo's Ituri province. Officials also confirmed eight laboratory-tested Ebola cases and 246 suspected infections across at least three health zones, including Bunia, Rwampara and Mongbwalu.

Health officials said the outbreak has already spread beyond rural areas, with one confirmed case detected in the eastern Congolese city of Goma. The city, which is close to the border with Rwanda and serves as a major regional transport hub, has previously faced Ebola outbreaks and remains highly vulnerable because of heavy population movement.

Concerns have also emerged regarding possible international exposure. Reports from American media outlets stated that at least six Americans working in the Democratic Republic of Congo may have been exposed to the Ebola virus. According to the reports, three of those exposures were considered high risk. Another report suggested that one American individual may have developed symptoms associated with the disease, although these claims had not been independently verified.The United States government is reportedly exploring options to evacuate potentially exposed individuals from the region, with some reports suggesting they could be transported to a military facility in Germany for monitoring and treatment.

Officials from the United States Centers for Disease Control and Prevention confirmed that the agency had activated its emergency response center in response to the outbreak. Additional personnel are expected to be deployed to CDC offices in both the Democratic Republic of Congo and Uganda to assist local health authorities with containment efforts, contact tracing and public health coordination.

During a media briefing, CDC Ebola response manager Satish Pillai declined to confirm whether any infected individuals were American citizens but stressed that the current risk to the United States remains low.

G7 Finance Ministers look to contain Iran economic fallout

PARIS

A group of seven are meeting in Paris to discuss global economic tensions, trade imbalances and coordination on critical mineral supplies, amid growing geopolitical tensions

Finance ministers and central bank representatives from the Group of Seven nations gathered in Paris on Monday amid rising concern over public debt levels and increasing volatility in global bond markets.

Government bond markets across major economies continued to face pressure on Monday, extending losses from Asia to the United States as investors reacted to growing concerns about inflation risks. Analysts said fears that higher oil and energy prices resulting from geopolitical tensions in the Middle East could drive up consumer prices have increased expectations of future interest rate hikes by central banks.

French Finance Minister Roland Lescure acknowledged the seriousness of the situation but rejected suggestions that global bond markets were collapsing. Speaking to reporters before the meeting, he described the developments as a market correction rather than a financial crisis.

However, he admitted that governments could no longer ignore the issue of rising public debt in an environment of higher borrowing costs and economic uncertainty.

The Paris meeting includes finance ministers and representatives from G7 central banks, who are expected to discuss how governments can coordinate responses to economic shocks such as inflation and market instability. According to the French finance ministry, the talks will focus on temporary, targeted and reversible policy measures designed to stabilize economies without worsening long-term fiscal pressures.

Germany's central bank chief Joachim Nagel expressed confidence that policymakers still had tools available to calm financial markets and restore investor confidence. European Central Bank President Christine Lagarde also commented on the recent turbulence, saying it was her responsibility to remain concerned about market developments and financial stability.

Japan has emerged as one of the countries most sensitive to the recent bond market volatility because of its large debt burden and historically low interest rates. Japanese Finance Minister Satsuki Katayama said Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi had instructed her to work toward minimizing financial risks linked to rising long-term interest rates, although she did not provide additional details on possible measures.

The G7 ministers are also expected to discuss broader economic tensions, including supply chain challenges and coordination on securing critical raw materials needed for technology and energy industries. However, divisions within the G7 over trade policy, economic priorities and responses to global conflicts have complicated efforts to present a united front ahead of the leaders' summit scheduled to take place from June 15 to June 17 in the French town of Evian.

International Monetary Fund Managing Director Kristalina Georgieva urged policymakers to avoid decisions that could worsen existing economic instability. Her remarks reflected broader fears that poorly coordinated responses to inflation and geopolitical tensions could deepen uncertainty in financial markets and slow global economic growth.

Russia unleashes another aerial barrage on Ukraine

MOSCOW

Russia launched a fresh wave of overnight drone attacks, missile strikes and shelling across multiple regions of Ukraine, killing at least one person and injuring more than 30 others, Ukrainian officials said on Monday.

Ukrainian authorities said Russian drones struck residential neighborhoods and civilian infrastructure during the overnight assault.

In the strategic Black Sea port city of Odesa, drones damaged apartment buildings, a school and a kindergarten, according to local military administration chief Serhiy Lysak.

Emergency crews were deployed to the affected areas as rescue operations and damage assessments continued through the morning.

Officials reported that an 11-year-old boy and a 59-year-old man were among those injured in the Odesa attack. Images released by local authorities showed destroyed vehicles, shattered windows and debris scattered across residential streets following the strikes.

In a separate attack, Russia launched missiles at the southeastern city of Dnipro, injuring at least 18 people. Regional governor Oleksandr Hanzha said two children were among the wounded, including a two-year-old girl and a 10-year-old boy. Medical teams continued treating the injured while emergency workers inspected damaged buildings and infrastructure.

Further east, the Zaporizhzhia region also came under attack overnight. Regional governor Ivan Fedorov confirmed that three people were injured during the strikes. In the southern Kherson region, another person was killed and nine others were wounded after shelling and drone attacks hit populated areas, according to regional governor Oleksandr Prokudin.The latest assaults highlight the continued use of drones and missile attacks by both sides in the prolonged conflict. Ukrainian officials have repeatedly accused Russia of deliberately targeting civilian infrastructure, while Moscow claims its attacks are aimed at military facilities and strategic assets.

Meanwhile, Russian authorities reported that several Ukrainian drones were intercepted overnight over the southern Russian regions of Rostov and Belgorod. Russia's defence ministry said air defence systems successfully shot down the drones before they could reach their intended targets.

The renewed violence followed one of Ukraine's largest drone operations against Russia in recent months. Over the weekend, Ukrainian drones targeted Moscow and surrounding regions in what officials described as the biggest overnight attack on the Russian capital in more than a year. Russian authorities said at least four people died during those strikes, including three in the Moscow region.

The escalating exchange of drone and missile attacks underscores the continuing volatility of the conflict, despite repeated international calls for de-escalation and renewed peace negotiations.

Earthquake hits southwest China; thousands evacuated

BEIJING

A magnitude 5.2 earthquake struck China's southwestern Guangxi region early on Monday, killing two people and forcing the evacuation of more than 7,000 residents in the city of Liuzhou. Authorities launched emergency rescue operations following the quake and warned of possible transport disruptions as officials assessed the extent of the damage.

The earthquake hit Guangxi province during the early morning hours, shaking residential areas and triggering panic among residents in several parts of Liuzhou city. Local authorities confirmed that at least two people lost their lives in the disaster, while several others were reported injured as rescue workers continued searching affected areas for possible survivors.

Officials said more than 7,000 residents were evacuated from buildings and neighborhoods considered vulnerable to structural damage. Emergency shelters were set up to accommodate displaced families as local governments coordinated relief and rescue efforts.

The tremor caused damage to homes, roads and public infrastructure in parts of the region. Videos shared on social media showed cracked walls, fallen debris and frightened residents gathering in open spaces after the quake. Authorities warned that aftershocks could continue and advised residents to remain cautious.

Transport services in and around Liuzhou were also affected following the earthquake. Railway operations and road traffic in certain areas experienced disruptions as safety inspections were carried out on bridges, tunnels and transport network.

Hantavirus-hit cruise ship arrives at Rotterdam port

ROTTERDAM

A luxury liner at the centre of an outbreak of hantavirus reached the Dutch port of Rotterdam on Monday, marine tracking sites said, where authorities prepared quarantine arrangements for the 23 crew and two medical staff remaining on board.

The Dutch-flagged MV Hondius had been carrying around 150 passengers and crew from 23 countries when a cluster of severe respiratory illnesses was first reported to the World Health Organization on May 2.

Three people - a Dutch couple and a German national - have died since the start of the outbreak.

The vessel, operated by Oceanwide Expeditions, had been stranded off Cape Verde, its intended final destination, earlier this month after authorities barred passengers from going ashore due to the outbreak.

The WHO and the EU asked Spain to manage the evacuation at the Canary Islands, after which the ship departed for Rotterdam with a skeleton crew and two additional medical staff.

Local port authorities said quarantine facilities had been set up for some of the non-Dutch crew, though it was unclear if they would stay there for the full recommended 42-day quarantine period. The vessel itself was to undergo disinfection.

Hantavirus is primarily spread by rodents but can be transmitted between people in rare cases and after prolonged, close contact. Incubation can last about six weeks.

Crew, passengers who already left the ship and people in contact with them have been quarantined in several countries around the world.

'Israel intercepted 10 vessels, contact lost with 23'

ISTANBUL

The organisers of a flotilla of aid vessels bound for Gaza said on Monday that Israeli forces had intercepted 10 of their boats and that contact had been lost with a total 23 vessels in the eastern Mediterranean.

Earlier on Monday, Israel's foreign ministry had said on X that it will not allow any breach of the lawful naval blockade on Gaza.

Ships from the Global Sumud Flotilla had set sail for a third time on Thursday from southern Turkey, after earlier attempts to deliver aid to Gaza were intercepted by Israel in international waters.

Live video showed military vessels approaching the vessels on Monday.

Military vessels are currently intercepting our fleet and (Israeli) forces are boarding the first of our boats in broad daylight.

PRABOWO BOOSTS AF POWER

Indonesia to build up defence capabilities with new aircraft

JAKARTA

Indonesia will continue expanding its defence capabilities in response to growing geopolitical uncertainty, President Prabowo Subianto said on Monday while officially handing over six Rafale fighter jets and several other military assets to the Indonesian Air Force.

The ceremony marked another major step in Indonesia's military modernization program aimed at strengthening national security and regional deterrence capabilities.

The six Rafale fighter jets delivered to Indonesia are part of a larger agreement signed in 2022 with Dassault Aviation worth approximately $8.1 billion for a total of 42 aircraft. Indonesia received the first three Rafale jets in January this year, while the remaining three were formally introduced during Monday's ceremony.

Speaking at the event, President Prabowo emphasized that Indonesia's military expansion was intended solely for national defence and protection of territorial sovereignty.

He described the arrival of the advanced fighter aircraft as a milestone in improving Indonesia's defence readiness amid increasingly complex global and regional security conditions.

During the ceremony, Prabowo performed a traditional blessing ritual by spraying flowered water on the nose cone of one of the Rafale jets. The symbolic act is commonly practiced in Indonesia to mark good fortune and blessings when receiving new assets or beginning important projects.

In addition to the Rafale fighter jets, the Indonesian president also formally handed over several other pieces of military equipment acquired through agreements signed during his previous role as defence minister. These included four Dassault Falcon 8X aircraft, an Airbus A400M MRTT transport aircraft, a Thales GM403.

Iran begin final WC prep in Turkey

Iran's national football team has departed for Turkey to play a final friendly match

TEHRAN

Iran's national football team left for Antalya, Turkey on Monday as they step up preparations for the 2026 FIFA World Cup, which will be jointly hosted by the United States, Mexico, and Canada. The squad is scheduled to play a final friendly match before travelling to the United States for the global tournament, Iranian media reported.

According to reports, the travelling squad includes 22 domestic-based players along with the coaching staff. Head coach Amir Ghalenoei confirmed that the team will also complete visa-related formalities for entry into the United States while staying in Turkey.

The team's World Cup participation comes against a politically sensitive backdrop, with a fragile ceasefire still holding between Iran and the United States following a 40-day conflict that began earlier this year. Diplomatic relations between the two nations have remained strained since 1980, when the US severed ties after the Islamic Revolution and the hostage crisis at its embassy in Tehran.

Iran are expected to play two warm-up matches in Antalya, including a confirmed fixture against The Gambia on May 29. Officials involved in arranging the friendlies said discussions are ongoing for additional matches to fine-tune preparations ahead of the tournament.

However, logistical challenges remain. Iranian Football Federation president Mehdi Taj stated that no US visas have yet been issued for the squad, and players may need to complete fingerprinting procedures in Turkey as part of the application process. Authorities are also trying to avoid additional travel between Antalya and Ankara to streamline formalities.

FIFA secretary general Mattias Grafström recently held discussions with Iranian football officials in Turkey, with both sides describing the meeting as positive and constructive. While details were not disclosed, the talks are believed to have focused on administrative and logistical arrangements for Iran's participation.

Once in the United States, Iran will base themselves in Tucson, Arizona, for their World Cup campaign. Drawn in Group G, they will open their tournament against New Zealand in Los Angeles on June 15, followed by matches against Belgium in Los Angeles and Egypt in Seattle.

Messi doubles training ahead of 2026 World Cup

MIAMI

Argentina captain Lionel Messi is pushing himself through an intense training programme as he gears up for the FIFA World Cup 2026, according to his Inter Miami and national teammate Rodrigo de Paul. The veteran forward, who continues to perform at a high level in Major League Soccer, is reportedly going beyond his regular club commitments to maintain peak physical condition.

De Paul revealed that Messi has been following a structured double-session training plan for the past two to three months, designed specifically to prepare him for the demands of another World Cup campaign. The programme is being carried out alongside a personal trainer, with both players reportedly committing fully to the additional workload.

De Paul explained that the training arrangement was mutually agreed upon as part of Messi's focused preparation strategy. He said the sessions go beyond what is required at club level, highlighting the Argentine skipper's determination to stay at the highest competitive standard even in the later stages of his career.

"Between two and three months ago, we had a training plan beyond what we do at the club and we give it our all," De Paul was quoted as saying, adding that both players are fully committed to the demanding schedule.

Despite being 38, Messi continues to deliver impressive performances for Inter Miami in the 2026 MLS season. He has already scored 12 goals in 12 matches and provided six assists, underlining his enduring influence on the pitch.

In his latest outing, Messi contributed a goal and an assist in Inter Miami's 2-0 victory over Portland Timbers, further boosting their position in the league standings. The club currently sits second in the table with 28 points from 14 matches, just two points behind leaders Nashville.

With the World Cup approaching, Messi's preparations appear firmly on track as he aims to guide Argentina in defending their title on football's biggest stage.

Paris Saint-Germain suffered a surprise 2-1 defeat to Paris FC in their final Ligue 1 match

PSG stunned by Paris FC as Lille reach Champions League

PARIS

Fresh off lifting the Ligue 1 title, Paris Saint-Germain ended their domestic campaign on a disappointing note after falling 2-1 to city neighbours Paris FC. The defeat came in their final league outing before the UEFA Champions League final against Arsenal, adding an unexpected setback to an otherwise dominant season.

PSG had already secured a record-extending 14th French league title earlier in the week with a win over Lens and were officially presented with the trophy before kickoff at the Stade Jean-Bouin. Head coach Luis Enrique fielded a strong lineup as he looked to fine-tune preparations ahead of the European final in Budapest on May 30.

However, concerns arose when star forward Ousmane Dembélé was forced off before the half-hour mark in what appeared to be a fitness scare. While PSG took the lead early in the second half through Bradley Barcola, the match turned dramatically in the closing stages.

Substitute Alimami Gory struck twice for Paris FC, including a stoppage-time winner that handed the newly promoted side an impressive 2-1 victory. Despite the loss, PSG remain focused on their Champions League final, where they will attempt to defend their European crown.

"It has been a tricky end to the season, but now we have two weeks to prepare for the biggest match in our history," said Luis Enrique, while downplaying concerns over Dembélé's condition and attributing his substitution to fatigue.

Elsewhere, Lille secured a return to the Champions League by finishing third, despite a 2-0 defeat to Auxerre. Their qualification was confirmed after Lyon suffered a heavy 4-0 loss to Lens, leaving them fourth and forced into the qualifying rounds.

Marseille also booked European football with a 3-1 win over Rennes, while other qualification and relegation battles went down to the wire across a dramatic final night. Monaco lost a thrilling 5-4 contest against Strasbourg, and Nice were pushed into a relegation play-off after a goalless draw with Metz.

The Ligue 1 finale delivered high drama across the table, but PSG's shock defeat provided the standout surprise ahead of their continental showdown.

India eye redemption against France challenge at Malaysia Masters

KUALA LUMPUR

Indian shuttlers are set for another showdown with French opponents at the Malaysia Masters Super 50

Indian badminton players will be aiming for redemption as they prepare to face familiar French rivals once again at the Malaysia Masters Super 500 tournament starting Tuesday in Kuala Lumpur. The fresh India-France contest comes just weeks after India suffered a disappointing 0-3 defeat to France in the Thomas Cup semifinals in Horsens, Denmark.

In that encounter, India lost all three singles matches, eventually settling for a bronze medal finish. This time, several Indian singles players will once again come up against French opposition, setting the stage for another high-stakes battle.

HS Prannoy will face Christo Popov, while Tharun Mannepalli is set to take on Toma Junior Popov. Kiran George faces a tough challenge against seventh seed Alex Lanier. Meanwhile, Lakshya Sen, who missed the Thomas Cup semifinal due to an elbow injury, returns to action and will open his campaign against Indonesia's Moh Zaki Ubaidillah.

In men's doubles, Harihara Amsakarunan and MR Arjun will look to make an impact as they face the French pair of Christo Popov and Toma Junior Popov in a challenging opener. The Indian pair will be keen to make a strong statement after missing out on opportunities in the previous team event.

The women's singles draw also presents tough fixtures for Indian players. Tanvi Sharma takes on Thailand's Pitchamon Opatniputh, while sixth seed Unnati Hooda faces China's Han Qian Xi. Malvika Bansod meets Germany's Yvonne Li, and Anmol Kharb will play eighth seed Line Højmark Kjærsfeldt of Denmark.

Rakshitha Sree Santhosh Ram is up against Japan's Natsuki Nidaira, while Isharani Baruah faces a difficult clash against fifth seed Line Christophersen of Denmark.

Praggnanandhaa held by Van Foreest as Keymer takes sole lead at Superbet Chess Classic

Indian Grandmaster R Praggnanandhaa was held to a draw by Jorden Van Foreest in Round 4

BUCHAREST

Indian Grandmaster R Praggnanandhaa played out a solid draw against Dutch player Jorden Van Foreest in the fourth round of the Superbet Chess Classic, while Germany's Vincent Keymer produced a commanding victory to move into sole lead in the elite tournament.

With one win against Alireza Firouzja and three draws so far, Praggnanandhaa moved to 2.5 points out of a possible four. Despite holding steady in the standings, the Indian teenager missed an opportunity to break into the sole lead group as the top board battles intensified.

In his game against Van Foreest, Praggnanandhaa, playing with black pieces, navigated an irregular opening comfortably and quickly equalised. Van Foreest, steadily improving in the world rankings and now inside the top 20, attempted to press for a win in the middlegame but failed to create decisive chances. After a series of accurate exchanges from both sides, the players repeated moves and agreed to a draw after 35 moves.

Elsewhere, Keymer delivered the standout performance of the round, defeating France's Maxime Vachier-Lagrave with precision and aggression. After steering the game into an English Attack against the Najdorf Sicilian, the German star capitalised on weaknesses on the kingside and launched a strong central breakthrough.

Keymer soon gained a material advantage by winning a rook for a bishop and maintained pressure as Vachier-Lagrave faltered under time and positional stress. The French grandmaster's decisive mistake in the middlegame allowed Keymer to convert his advantage efficiently, sealing the game in just 38 moves and pushing him to 3 points.

In other matches, Anish Giri drew with Javokhir Sindarov, while Wesley So was held by Deac Bogdan-Daniel. Firouzja's game against Fabiano Caruana was postponed due to health concerns.

With Keymer now leading the table and several players closely bunched behind, the Superbet Chess Classic remains finely poised heading into the next round.

Shai Gilgeous-Alexander wins back-to-back NBA MVP awards

OKLAHOMA CITY

Shai Gilgeous-Alexander capped another remarkable season by winning the NBA's Most Valuable Player award for the second consecutive year, further cementing his status as one of basketball's elite stars. The Oklahoma City Thunder guard became only the 14th player in NBA history to win back-to-back MVP honours.

The Canadian superstar led the defending NBA champions through another dominant campaign and was rewarded by voters after playing a central role in Oklahoma City's success. Gilgeous-Alexander received 83 of the 100 first-place votes, comfortably finishing ahead of Denver Nuggets star Nikola Jokic and San Antonio Spurs sensation Victor Wembanyama.

Speaking during a celebration at the Thunder practice facility surrounded by teammates, Gilgeous-Alexander stressed that the achievement belonged to the entire team rather than himself alone.

"Basketball is obviously a team sport. All the accolades and numbers wouldn't matter if we weren't winning games," he said. The 27-year-old became the 18th player in league history to win at least two MVP awards. His victory also extended a notable international streak, marking the eighth consecutive year that a non-American player has claimed the NBA's top individual honour.

Gilgeous-Alexander averaged 31.1 points per game this season, second only to Luka Doncic, while continuing his NBA-record streak of regular-season games with at least 20 points. He also won the NBA's Clutch Player of the Year award earlier this season after repeatedly delivering in close contests.

Thunder coach Mark Daigneault praised his star player's maturity, leadership and steady growth, saying Gilgeous-Alexander had refined every aspect of his game while remaining grounded and team-oriented.

The MVP race once again highlighted the dominance of international stars in the NBA. Jokic finished second after another extraordinary season in which he averaged a triple-double, while French phenom Wembanyama came third.

Gilgeous-Alexander's latest honour comes as Oklahoma City prepares for the Western Conference finals against San Antonio. NBA commissioner Adam Silver is expected to formally present the trophy before Game 1, adding another milestone to an already historic year for the Thunder leader.

AARON RAI WINS MAIDEN PGA CHAMPIONSHIP, PROUDLY EMBRACES INDIAN AND KENYAN ROOTS

NEWTOWN

Aaron Rai etched his name into golfing history after winning the PGA Championship at Aronimink Golf Club, delivering a clutch-filled final round that showcased both composure and brilliance under pressure. The 31-year-old Englishman carded a 5-under-par 65 to finish at 9-under 271, securing a three-shot victory over Spain's Jon Rahm and American Alex Smalley.

Rai produced a spectacular finish to his round, highlighted by a 40-foot eagle putt on the ninth hole that ignited his charge. He followed it up with four birdies on the back nine before sealing the championship with a remarkable 68½-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole, effectively ending the contest.

The victory marks a historic milestone, as Rai becomes the first English golfer since Jim Barnes in 1919 to win the PGA Championship. It also represents his first major title, having previously not finished better than tied 19th in any of the sport's biggest events.

Rai, who started the final round in a crowded chasing pack, held his nerve as others faltered, showcasing remarkable consistency in the closing stretch of the tournament. Ranked 44th in the world entering the week, he had one PGA Tour win and three DP World Tour titles prior to this breakthrough.

Beyond the achievement, Rai's triumph carried emotional significance due to his multicultural background. His father is of Indian ancestry, while his mother has Kenyan roots, and Rai has often spoken about proudly representing all three identities.

"I'm very proud of England, but also very proud of India and Kenya," Rai said. "I see myself as a mix of all three, and that means a lot to me."

A major influence in his journey has been his wife, Indian professional golfer Gaurika Bishnoi, whose advice and support have played a vital role in his preparation and mindset. Rai revealed that even casual conversations, including one during a car ride before the final round, helped shape his approach on the course.

The couple's light-hearted celebration plans reflected Rai's grounded nature, even after achieving one of golf's biggest honours. His victory earned widespread praise from fellow professionals, who highlighted his relentless work ethic and discipline as key to his success.

US-Iran war: Bitcoin price drops to two-week low

New Delhi

Bitcoin slid to its weakest level in May on Monday over escalating macroeconomic concerns tied to the US Iran conflict, causing overall crypto market weakness. The world's largest cryptocurrency dropped to $76,711 before it recovered some losses to trade at $76,985.11 as of 2.25 pm. Major digital assets such as Ether and Solana also traded lower. Nearly $500 million of long positions were liquidated within about 15 minutes during early Asian trading hours, according to multiple reports. US listed spot Bitcoin exchange traded funds saw over $1 billion in outflows last week, the first such occurrence since late January, traders said. GE Aerospace expands India footprint with Rs 100 cr Pune unit

In 3 years, the aerospace major's investments in the facility, which makes critical components for commercial aircraft engines, total ₹510 crore

NEW DELHI

US-based aerospace engine manufacturer GE Aerospace announced on Monday that it will invest Rs 100 crore in its manufacturing facility in Pune to expand production capabilities and upgrade infrastructure.According to the company, the latest investment will be used to introduce new welding technologies, advanced inspection systems, precision tools, gauges and fixtures at the Pune facility. Additional infrastructure upgrades are also planned to help increase production capacity and improve manufacturing efficiency as the company continues scaling up operations in the country.

With the fresh investment, GE Aerospace's total commitment to the Pune facility has now crossed Rs 510 crore over the past three years. The company stated that Rs 410 crore of that amount had already been invested during the last two years as part of its long-term expansion strategy in India.The Pune manufacturing plant plays a critical role in GE Aerospace's global supply chain and produces essential components used in several major commercial aircraft engine programmes. These include the GE90, GEnx and GE9X engine series, as well as LEAP engines manufactured by CFM International, a joint venture between GE Aerospace and Safran.Company officials said the investment reflects GE Aerospace's broader strategy of strengthening India's aerospace manufacturing ecosystem while also supporting workforce development. Since 2015, the Pune facility has trained more than 5,000 production associates, contributing to the development of skilled talent in the aviation manufacturing sector.

The company added that the continued expansion of operations is expected to create additional apprenticeship programmes and employment opportunities, not only within GE Aerospace but also across its supplier network and partner industries.The Pune facility currently works with more than 300 local suppliers and forms part of a much larger network of over 2,200 GE Aerospace suppliers operating across India. The company said this supplier ecosystem has become increasingly important in supporting both domestic manufacturing and global export operations.

GE Aerospace also highlighted its longstanding relationship with India's aviation and defence sectors. The company's defence engines and systems power several aircraft platforms operated by the Indian Air Force and the Indian Navy. In the commercial aviation sector, more than 1,400 GE and CFM engines are currently used in aircraft operated by Indian airlines.The latest investment announcement comes as India continues to position itself as a major global manufacturing and aerospace hub. India targets $2 trillion exports in 5 years: Goyal

Union Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said on Monday that India is aiming to achieve exports worth $2 trillion within the next five years, while setting a target of $1 trillion in exports for the financial year 2026-27. The minister said India continues to remain a strong economic performer despite ongoing geopolitical tensions and uncertainty in global markets.Speaking at an event, Goyal highlighted that India's total exports of goods and services reached a record high of $863 billion during the financial year 2025-26.

He said the achievement came despite disruptions caused by global trade tensions, including tariff-related uncertainties linked to the United States and continuing geopolitical conflicts such as the war in Ukraine and tensions in West Asia arising from the Iran conflict.

The minister noted that India's growing network of free trade agreements has significantly expanded the country's access to global markets. According to Goyal, India's FTAs now cover more than two-thirds of global trade, strengthening export opportunities for Indian industries across sectors.He announced that India's Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement with Oman is expected to come into force on June 1. India and Oman signed the agreement in December 2025 after several rounds of negotiations that began in November 2023. The deal provides duty-free access for most Indian exports, including textiles, to the Omani market.

Under the agreement, India will receive zero-duty access on more than 98 per cent of Oman's tariff lines, covering over 99 per cent of Indian exports by value. In return, India will reduce tariffs on approximately 78 per cent of its tariff lines, covering nearly 95 per cent of imports from Oman. Sensitive sectors will continue to receive protection mainly through tariff-rate quota mechanisms.Officials stated that bilateral trade between India and Oman reached $10.61 billion during 2024-25, representing an increase of 18.6 per cent compared to the previous year. The government expects the agreement to further strengthen trade and investment ties between the two countries. Goyal also pointed out that India has already operationalised major trade agreements with countries and blocs including the United Arab Emirates, Australia and the European Free Trade Association. He added that agreements with the European Union and the United Kingdom are also expected to become operational later this year after legal ratification procedures are completed.

The minister said these agreements would help Indian exporters gain wider market access and improve the country's position in global trade networks. He added that additional FTAs currently undergoing legal processes would gradually begin contributing to export growth in the coming months.During the event, Goyal also released the Logistics Ease Across Different States report for 2025 and participated in the Logistics Excellence, Advancements and Performance Shield awards ceremony. He emphasized that reducing logistics costs has become an important national priority aimed at improving India's competitiveness in international trade and manufacturing.

Indian fin institutions see surge in Deepfake-based fraud attempt

NEW DELHI

Deepfake-enabled fraud, powered by artificial intelligence, is emerging as a new high impact attack vector that targets financial institutions, customers and transaction ecosystems, a report said on Monday.The report from Seqrite, the enterprise security arm of cybersecurity solutions provider Quick Heal Technologies Limited said AI driven impersonation attacks that use synthetic voice, video and identity manipulation are increasingly able to bypass traditional verification mechanisms.Attackers can mimic executives, relationship managers, or customers with high accuracy, enabling fraudulent authorisations, account takeovers, and real-time payment manipulation.These attacks are particularly effective in environments where speed of transaction often outweighs verification depth, the report noted.Over 265.52 million detections across more than 8 million endpoints were recorded between October 2024 and September 2025 with an average of 505 detections every minute.Trojans accounted for about 43 per cent of detections and file infectors about 35 per cent, the report said, noting many campaigns relying on social engineering and identity deception to initiate compromise.Financial institutions, by design, operate on trust-driven interactions across customers, vendors, and internal systems. Deepfake-based fraud exploits this trust layer, embedding itself within legitimate communication channels such as calls, video verifications, and approval workflows, making detection significantly more complex.

'AI-driven cybersecurity threats could endanger market Integrity'

MUMBAI

Tuhin Kanta Pandey has identified artificial intelligence-driven cybersecurity threats as one of the biggest risks facing India's financial markets, warning that vulnerabilities in software systems could seriously undermine market integrity.

Pandey said current concerns regarding artificial intelligence are focused more on cybersecurity risks than on fears of market manipulation or algorithmic trading disruptions.

He explained that modern financial markets rely extensively on software infrastructure, making them highly vulnerable to cyberattacks if weaknesses in those systems are not addressed quickly.

According to the SEBI chief, any successful cyberattack targeting financial market systems could have severe consequences for investor confidence, operational stability and the overall integrity of the market ecosystem.

He emphasized that regulators and market participants must take preventive measures to strengthen digital security frameworks before vulnerabilities can be exploited.

Pandey stressed that all software systems used in the financial sector, including those developed by third-party vendors, must undergo strong security checks and regular updates.

He said aggressive patch management practices and extensive vulnerability assessments are necessary to ensure that weaknesses in software systems are identified and resolved immediately.The SEBI chairman also highlighted the importance of conventional cybersecurity tools in detecting and preventing attacks, even as artificial intelligence technologies become increasingly sophisticated. He said market institutions should adopt a proactive approach toward cybersecurity rather than reacting only after incidents occur.His comments come at a time when governments, regulators and technology experts worldwide are expressing growing concern about the rapid advancement of AI systems capable of identifying and exploiting software vulnerabilities autonomously. Experts warn that increasingly advanced AI models could significantly raise the scale and speed of cyberattacks against financial institutions and critical infrastructure.

KEY PILLAR OF FIN ECOSYSTEM

'ARCs strengthening India's financial ecosystem'

NEW DELHI

India's financial system has become stronger and more stable due to the growing role of asset reconstruction companies (ARCs), M Nagaraju, Secretary, Department of Financial Services, said on Monday. Addressing an industry gathering during ASREC logo launch event in the national capital, he said ARCs have emerged as a key pillar of the country's financial ecosystem by helping banks and financial institutions resolve stressed assets efficiently.

ARCs play a major role in acquiring non-performing assets (NPAs) from banks and restoring confidence in the banking system, he said. These institutions help banks clean up their balance sheets, improve liquidity and focus on fresh lending activities that support economic growth, he added.

He noted that India's financial sector has undergone major transformation over the years with continuous efforts towards transparency, accountability and financial stability.

The government and regulators have consistently acted in the national interest to address stressed assets and maintain financial discipline, Nagaraju stated.Highlighting recent developments in the sector, Nagaraju said stronger institutional cooperation, improved frameworks and better networks have placed the industry in a stronger position for future growth.

He also thanked stakeholders, including leadership teams and partner institutions such as Union Bank of India and Bank of India, for their support and cooperation.The DFS Secretary said ARCs provide multiple mechanisms for debt resolution, including debt restructuring, enforcement of security interests and debt-to-equity conversions.He added that ARCs complement the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC) by offering an alternative and often faster route for resolving stressed assets.

At the same time, Nagaraju acknowledged that the ARC sector continues to face challenges such as limited capital availability, regulatory overlaps, prolonged litigation and valuation mismatches between banks and ARCs.

IPL PLAYOFFS RACE GOES DOWN TO FINAL WEEK

The IPL 2026 playoff race has entered a dramatic final phase with seven teams fighting for just three remaining spots

NEW DELHI

The Indian Premier League (IPL) 2026 is heading into a tense finish to the league stage, with seven teams still in contention for the remaining three playoff berths. Royal Challengers Bengaluru (RCB) have already secured their place in the top four following a crucial win over Punjab Kings, but the race behind them remains wide open and mathematically complex.

With only a few league matches left, the battle for qualification has intensified, and net run rate is expected to play a decisive role in several cases. Gujarat Titans, led by Shubman Gill, are in the strongest position among the chasing pack and need just one more win from their remaining fixtures to guarantee qualification. Even in the worst-case scenario, they are likely to stay ahead due to a healthy points buffer.

Sunrisers Hyderabad also remain well placed, with two wins potentially taking them to 18 points and a strong chance of a top-two finish. Even one win could be enough depending on other results, thanks to their superior net run rate.

Punjab Kings, however, face a must-win situation after their defeat to RCB. Their maximum possible tally is now limited, meaning they must win their final game and depend on multiple results going their way. Rajasthan Royals and Chennai Super Kings are in similar must-win scenarios, with both sides needing strong finishes to avoid elimination or a net run rate battle.

Delhi Capitals are in the most difficult position, with only one match remaining and a maximum of 14 points possible. Their qualification hopes depend heavily on other teams collapsing while also requiring a big win to overcome a poor net run rate.

Meanwhile, Kolkata Knight Riders remain in contention but need consistent results in their final matches to stay alive in the race. With only Mumbai Indians and Lucknow Super Giants already eliminated, the final week promises high-stakes encounters, shifting equations, and possible last-over drama as teams fight for survival in IPL 2026.

BCCI mulls shift of U-23 50-over tournament to T20 format

NEW DELHI

BCCI officials believe the possible shift could better align age-group cricket with modern T20 demands and global leagues

The Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) is considering a major structural change to its domestic pathway programme, with plans to convert the Under-23 men's 50-over national tournament into the T20 format from the 2026–27 season. The proposed shift is still at a preliminary stage, and the board is expected to consult state associations and other key stakeholders before taking a final decision.

It is learnt that the board will seek opinions of state associations and former players, along with other respected voices in Indian cricket, before implementing any change. Officials indicated that feedback will be collected over the coming months as part of a broader review of domestic structures.

The tournament, currently known as the State A Championship, is divided into Elite and Plate divisions, following the existing domestic structure. Tamil Nadu are the defending champions in the Elite category, while Meghalaya hold the Plate division title from the previous season.

The corresponding Under-23 red-ball competition continues to be played as the Col CK Nayudu Trophy, which remains an important platform for identifying long-format talent at the junior level. BCCI officials believe the possible shift could help better align age-group cricket with the modern demands of the shortest format, given the rising prominence of T20 leagues globally and the need to prepare players for high-pressure situations. However, concerns remain among some administrators who feel that reducing 50-over exposure at the U-23 level may impact the development of one-day skills and match temperament required for senior domestic cricket and international ODIs.

According to sources, the proposal is expected to be placed before the BCCI's domestic structure committee in the coming weeks, after which formal discussions with state associations will begin. Any final decision is likely to be taken ahead of the 2026–27 domestic season schedule. If approved, the revamped competition could mark another significant shift in India's age-group cricket pathway system.

The BCCI has not issued an official statement yet and maintains that consultations are ongoing, with all options currently under consideration for the next phase of domestic cricket reforms. The review process continues across India.

Riyan Parag fumes after Rajasthan Royals' defeat to DC

JAIPUR

Rajasthan Royals skipper Riyan Parag did not hold back in the post-match presentation after his team suffered another disappointing defeat to Delhi Capitals in IPL 2026, a result that has left their playoff hopes hanging by a thread. The Royals, who have now lost four of their last five matches, missed a crucial opportunity to strengthen their position in the top four race.

Parag criticised Rajasthan's batting, bowling, and fielding, calling the overall performance "not up to the mark" and stressing that the team lacked the execution and energy required at this level.

"Pretty much everything, actually. We were in a pretty good space after 14 overs. After I got out, we didn't capitalise on that. It had to be 220–230. As far as bowling is concerned, we just weren't there. Very poor fielding as well," Parag said.

He added that while some tactical decisions may have looked questionable from the outside, they were made based on match situations. However, he admitted that none of the plans worked and the team failed to deliver in key moments.

The RR skipper further said the side has underperformed in recent matches and warned that continued poor displays would make them unworthy of a top-four finish.

"I feel if you want to win a trophy, you've got to be better than what we've done today. If we keep playing like this, we shouldn't be in contention for the top four," he said.

When reminded that Rajasthan still have a mathematical chance to qualify, Parag made it clear he was not interested in depending on other results. He said the team had already wasted its chances and must now take full responsibility for the situation.

PANT MAY LOSE TEST VICE-CAPTAINCY ROLE

NEW DELHI

The Indian cricket selection committee is expected to hold key discussions over Rishabh Pant's role as Test vice-captain when it meets in Guwahati on Tuesday to pick the squads for the upcoming series against Afghanistan. There is a growing view within the BCCI that relieving Pant of leadership responsibilities could help him concentrate more fully on his batting.

According to sources, the 28-year-old wicketkeeper-batter has not looked entirely comfortable in leadership roles, with recent seasons at Lucknow Super Giants in the IPL also being cited as evidence of similar struggles. The feeling among some decision-makers is that added responsibility may be affecting his natural, aggressive batting style.

Pant had previously been entrusted with stand-in captaincy during a Test match against South Africa in Guwahati last November in the absence of Shubman Gill. However, concerns were raised over his tactical decision-making in that game, which has reportedly added to the ongoing internal debate about whether he should continue in a formal leadership position in the red-ball setup.

"Indian cricket cannot afford to lose a match-winner like Pant's batting impact. But there is a view that extra responsibility sometimes affects his decision-making at the crease," a BCCI source said.

The committee is believed to be considering whether allowing Pant to play with greater freedom, without leadership pressure, could help unlock more consistent performances in Tests and ODIs. His form and role in the limited-overs setup are also under review, especially with strong competition from Dhruv Jurel, Sanju Samson and Ishan Kishan for wicketkeeping slots.

Meanwhile, workload management discussions are also expected to influence selection decisions. Jasprit Bumrah's participation in the Test and ODI series will depend on clearance from the medical team, with indications that he may be rested for the ODIs regardless of fitness status due to workload concerns.

Ponting seen alone on bench after defeat, R Ashwin calls it 'POWERFUL PICTURE'

DHARAMSHALA

Punjab Kings' dismal IPL 2026 campaign took another emotional turn when head coach Ricky Ponting was seen sitting alone in the dugout after the team's defeat to Royal Challengers Bengaluru in Dharamshala. The loss marked PBKS's sixth consecutive defeat, pushing them to the brink of elimination from the playoffs race and leaving both players and management searching for answers.

As the match ended, cameras captured Ponting sitting quietly on the bench, reflecting on a campaign that began with promise but has now unraveled in the second half. The visual quickly went viral, with former India spinner R Ashwin calling it a "powerful picture" and expressing empathy for the veteran coach while also pointing out structural issues within the franchise.

Ashwin said Ponting appeared burdened by the team's slide in form and suggested that Punjab Kings had lost control of a strong position in the tournament. He noted that the franchise had been in contention for a top-two finish earlier in the season before their recent collapse.

"I saw a powerful picture on TV after the match. Ricky Ponting was sitting alone in the dugout. He must have a lot going on in his head," Ashwin said, adding that the team had failed to capitalise on home advantage during crucial matches.

Ashwin also questioned Punjab Kings' decision to use multiple home venues—Mullanpur and Dharamshala—arguing that the shift between conditions may have affected consistency. He said differences in pitch behaviour and altitude had a direct impact on performance, especially for young and overseas players adjusting to varying conditions.

He further suggested that established IPL teams benefit from continuity at a single home venue, which helps players adapt better over time.

According to him, Punjab's inability to settle into one environment contributed to their decline during the crucial phase of the season.

IPL 2026: Shreyas Iyer says powerplay collapse cost Punjab Kings the match

DHARAMSHALA

Punjab Kings skipper Shreyas Iyer admitted that the match slipped away in the powerplay as Royal Challengers Bengaluru delivered an explosive start and maintained control to secure a 23-run win, sealing their place in the IPL 2026 playoffs. The high-scoring encounter at Dharamshala saw RCB post a commanding 222 for four before restricting PBKS to 199 for eight in their chase.

Iyer pointed to early setbacks as the decisive factor in the contest. He said Punjab Kings failed to capitalize on key moments with the ball and could not break RCB's momentum during the initial overs, which allowed the opposition to build a strong foundation for a big total.

"Obviously, they got off to a great start and then started taking on the bowlers right after the powerplay. I think getting to 222 was a commendable performance and we weren't able to take wickets in the bowling that much, but yeah, I think the match was lost in the powerplay," Iyer said.

Punjab Kings captain said his side lost the IPL 2026 clash against RCB after failing to take early wickets and losing momentum in the chase

The Punjab skipper also rued the early dismissals in the chase, noting that his side's usual strong starts from Prabhsimran Singh and Priyansh Arya were missing in this game. He acknowledged his own early wicket as a further setback that disrupted the chase.

"We were three down and the majority of our run scorers were Prabhsimran and Priyansh.

No Government Funding, No RTI: CIC Rules BCCI Is Not a Public Authority

NEW DELHI

In a major ruling with wide implications for sports governance in India, the Central Information Commission (CIC) has held that the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) is not a "public authority" under the Right to Information (RTI) Act, 2005. The decision effectively places the world's richest cricket board outside the mandatory disclosure framework of the transparency law.

The order, issued by Information Commissioner P.R. Ramesh, concludes a long-standing legal dispute that has moved through various forums since 2018. Earlier, a CIC bench had declared the BCCI as a public authority, directing it to comply with RTI obligations. However, the matter was later challenged in court and remitted back for fresh examination in line with Supreme Court precedents.

In its latest ruling, the Commission observed that the BCCI does not meet the requirements under Section 2(h) of the RTI Act. It noted that the cricket board is a society registered under the Tamil Nadu Societies Registration Act and was not created by Parliament or established under the Constitution.

The CIC also emphasised that there is no "deep or pervasive control" exercised by the government over the BCCI's functioning. It further highlighted that the board operates independently, generating its own revenue through broadcasting rights, sponsorships, ticket sales, and commercial partnerships, making it financially self-sufficient.

Importantly, the Commission clarified that indirect benefits such as tax exemptions or regulatory concessions cannot be treated as "substantial government financing" under the RTI law. This interpretation played a key role in excluding the BCCI from the Act's ambit.

In its observations, the CIC also referred to the BCCI's evolution into a major global cricketing power driven by India's commercial sports market and the Indian Premier League (IPL). It cautioned against assuming that state control is necessary for accountability in such ecosystems.

Relying on Supreme Court judgments, the ruling reaffirms that the BCCI operates as an independent private entity. The Commission further stated that any alteration to its RTI coverage would need a change in law through legislative action.

IPL 2026: Cooper Connolly Breaks Jayasuriya's IPL Record

DHARAMSHALA

Australian batter Cooper Connolly shattered Sanath Jayasuriya's 18-year-old IPL record despite Punjab Kings' 23-run defeat to Royal Challengers Bengaluru in a high-voltage IPL 2026 clash at the HPCA Stadium in Dharamshala.

Connolly struck three sixes in his 37 off 22 balls, taking his season tally to 32 maximums and surpassing Jayasuriya's long-standing mark of 31 sixes in a debut IPL season set in 2008. The young left-hander has now scored 473 runs in 12 innings at an average of 47.30, emerging as Punjab Kings' most consistent performer this season.

Batting first, RCB posted a commanding 222/4, powered by Virat Kohli's composed 58 and Venkatesh Iyer's explosive unbeaten 73*, which earned him Player of the Match. Tim David's late flourish pushed the total beyond 220.

In reply, Punjab Kings managed 199/8 despite fighting knocks from Shashank Singh and Marcus Stoinis. Rasikh Salam's three-wicket haul and Bhuvneshwar Kumar's early breakthroughs sealed RCB's win and confirmed their place in the IPL 2026 playoffs.
